Q&A with Tiffany Conway, SFPL's More Than a Month Spotlight Artist

Tiffany Conway

We sat down for a brief conversation with Tiffany Conway, who created the striking artwork for this year's campaign. Conway is a Bay Area-based artist who grew her creativity from life experiences. Find out more about her by visiting projectgetfree.com.

Who or what inspired you to become an artist?

Art chose me as I've always been creative but painting moved to the forefront of my creative practices because it allowed me the complete autonomy to create as I see fit.

What tools did you use to create your More Than a Month art?

I'm partial to oil paint—because I paint people, I feel like it's the best medium to work in when representing people. When creating art for More Than a Month, I kept it simple with oil paint and canvas.

How have libraries played a role in your life?

If it weren't for libraries, I wouldn't have had access to the various art forms that exist around the world. And having the library as a resource, I was able to take my art history education even further.

What does Black History Month mean to you?

Black History Month is the first step in the acknowledgment of our contributions to this country. It is a reminder to be proud of my history, my heritage, my culture and to celebrate with joy.

What are some things you like to do for self-care?

I was particularly excited about this collaboration because I'm a huge champion for meditation. Just five minutes a day can make a big difference in setting the tone for your day. It is my primary source for self-care in addition to baths, prayer and cooking with healthy intentions.

Commit to Your Wellness Practice: Meditate for More Than a Month

Dennis Billups

Take a break and build a practice of wakefulness and tranquility here in the African American Center with disability rights activist Dennis Billups. This workshop, a partnership between the African American Center and the Talking Books and Braille Center at the Main Library, is a secular approach to an old tradition, appropriate for people of all faiths, including atheists. There is time for questions after the meditation session.

Dennis Billups is a blind disability rights activist. He was Chief Morale Officer in the 504 Sit-in disability rights protest, and contributed to the Netflix documentary, Crip Camp, co-produced by Barack Obama. Connect with Billups on his YouTube channel: bit.ly/Dennis_Billups.

Workshop: Meditation in the African American Center – Feb. 2, 9, 16 and 23, 12 p.m., African American Center Exhibit Space, Third Floor, Main Library. A session will be livestreamed. Attendees will not be filmed. More information: on.sfpl.org/meditation-2-2.

Quincy Troupe, with Danny Glover and Terry McMillan

Poet of the “deep song,” Quincy Troupe's new collected poems, DUENDE: Poems, 1966-Now represents more than 50 years of lyrical, evocative writing.

Along this journey, he has also made significant contributions to the American literary landscape as a biographer (including subjects Miles Davis, Chris Gardner, Earl “The Pearl” Monroe), poet, children's book author, editor, cultural curator and professor emeritus at the University of California, San Diego. Troupe is joined in conversation by lifelong friends, celebrated actor Danny Glover and best-selling author Terry McMillan. The event will celebrate his years of collaboration with visual artists and musicians, with featured guest cameos to round out a literary life of lasting achievements.

The Beauty of Being Black in Conversation

Experience Black joy with San Francisco Public Library (SFPL) and the San Francisco Unified School District (SFUSD) youth librarians. Join BIPOC librarians Rachel Fiege (SFPL), Jason Hill (SFPL) and Ayana Thompson (SFUSD) for a virtual conversation about Black joy in schools, youth literature, librarianship and beyond. They discuss how Black youth should have access to positive stories about their heritage that aren't rooted in stereotypes or sidekick roles, by sharing their personal insights about working with Black youth and how they spread Black Joy to their young patrons, students and families. Find out their essential recommendations, including booklists, online resources and their own personal favorites including Coretta Scott King Book Award titles and more.

Alphabet Rockers Power Change with New Book Launch

The new picture book You Are Not Alone, written by the Alphabet Rockers with art by Ashley Evans, empowers kids to love their beautiful selves, celebrate their identities, stand up to hate and have each other's backs no matter what. Listen to the read-aloud, ask questions and then groove to the music for a concert with the Grammy-nominated group.

Alphabet Rockers make music that makes change. Families need content that is healing, that reflects and empowers—that embraces Black liberation, Queer liberation, Indigenous rights, immigrant rights and intersectionality. Alphabet Rockers curates this content with the community, centering children's voices. They amplify authentic stories and interrupt the patterns that got us here. Founded by Kaitlin McGaw (she/her) and Tommy Shepherd (he/him/they), this intergenerational group creates brave spaces to shape a more equitable world through hip hop.

Stay Well This Year with Our eResources

Looking for the latest information on health and wellness? SFPL's eResources offer up-to-date information for all ages.

Whether you are looking for in-depth scientific research or the latest newspaper and magazine articles, Science in Context (Gale) offers a compendium of easily searchable information from across the globe. Science in Context's health and medicine section offers the latest news and information on topics including allergies, Coronavirus, diabetes, HIV/AIDS, obesity, puberty, sleep, stress and many others. Selecting a health and medicine topic of interest takes you to a resources page providing an introductory overview, along with separate sections on the latest news articles, research published in academic journals, audio and video clips, general reference content and other information. Some topics even provide science experiments you can try at home!

The importance of developing healthy habits can sometimes seem abstract or confusing for younger children. For parents wanting to help their little ones understand the importance of health and well-being, Hoopla holds a large selection of eBooks and eAudiobooks. Find Your Sport helps kids discover what sport might be right for them, either to play on their own or with others. With colorful pictures and simple text, Why We Go to the Doctor explains to younger kids how a visit to the doctor keeps you healthy. Unicorn Yoga will take your little one through their first simple yoga poses. These and other resources on a bevy of other health-related topics—including stress, dental care and disease—will help your kids better understand and develop healthy habits.

Happy 100 to Ulysses

On Feb. 2, 1922, James Joyce's masterpiece Ulysses was published by Sylvia Beach, owner of the famous Shakespeare & Company bookstore in Paris.

Each year, Joyce fans around the globe come together on June 16, the day on which Ulysses is set, to commemorate the life of the Irish writer. Known as Bloomsday, the celebration is named after the book's protagonist, Leopold Bloom. Exciting plans are in the works for the book's centennial. This June, the Library joins other cultural partners in presenting programs inspired by the book and will host an exhibit from Ireland about Joyce's life.

Stay tuned for more information, and since the book is very long, now would be a good time to start reading it if you haven't done so already.

The Body Is Not an Apology: The Power of Radical Self-Love by Sonya Renee Taylor

Offers radical self-love as the balm to heal the wounds inflicted by these violent systems.

Please Don't Sit on My Bed in Your Outside Clothes: Essays by Phoebe Robinson

The New York Times best-selling author, comedian, actress and producer is back with a new essay collection that is equal parts thoughtful, hilarious and sharp about human connection, race, hair, travel, dating, Black excellence and more.

Survival of the Thickest: Essays by Michelle Buteau

The stand-up comedian, actress and host of the Late Night Whenever podcast shares an unapologetic collection of essays that reflect on her Caribbean heritage; growing up in New Jersey and her experiences with marriage, IVF, surrogacy and motherhood.

Fattily Ever After: A Black Fat Girl's Guide to Living Life Unapologetically by Stephanie Yeboah

Yeboah speaks openly and courageously about her own experience on navigating life as a Black, plus-sized woman—telling it how it really is—and how she has managed to find self-acceptance in a world where judgment and discrimination are rife.

Hood Feminism: Notes From the Women That a Movement Forgot by Mikki Kendall

Insightful, incendiary and ultimately hopeful, Hood Feminism is both an irrefutable indictment of a movement in flux and also a clear-eyed assessment of how to save it.

Every Body Yoga: Let Go of Fear, Get on the Mat, Love Your Body by Jessamyn Stanley

This book changes the paradigm, showing us that yoga isn't about how one looks, but how one feels, with yoga sequences like "I Want to Energize My Spirit," "I Need to Release Fear" and "I Want to Love Myself."

Thick and Other Essays by Tressie McMillan Cottom

In these eight piercing explorations on beauty, media, money and more, McMillan Cottom—award-winning professor and acclaimed author of Lower Ed—embraces her venerated role as a purveyor of wit, wisdom and Black Twitter snark about all that is right and much that is wrong with this thing we call society.

Fearing the Black Body: The Racial Origins of Fat Phobia by Sabrina Strings

Strings weaves together an eye-opening historical narrative ranging from the Renaissance to the current moment, analyzing important works of art, newspaper and magazine articles, scientific literature and medical journals—where fat bodies were once praised—showing fat phobia, as it relates to Black women.

Educator and Author Peter Bacho in Conversation with CCSF's Dr. Lily Ann B. Villaraza

Peter Bacho

A partnership with the Berkeley Public Library and the Philippine Studies Department, City College of San Francisco

Peter Bacho, distinguished author and educator, reads from his new work, Uncle Rico's Encore: Mostly True Stories of Filipino Seattle. Afterwards, he speaks with Professor

Lily Ann Villaraza. In this collection of autobiographical essays, Bacho centers the experiences of the Pinoy generation that grew up in Seattle's multiethnic neighborhoods, from the Central Area to Beacon Hill and Rainier Valley.

Bacho was born in Seattle, Washington, and grew up in the City's famed Central Area. He teaches at The Evergreen State College and is the author of many books, including Cebu, which received an American Book Award.

Dr. Villaraza is the chair of the Philippine Studies Department at City College of San Francisco. She is a cultural historian and holds a doctorate in history from Northern Illinois University, with specializations in Southeast Asian history, Philippine history and US immigration history.

Voices Bear Witness to Community Activation Post-Crisis

The award-winning nonprofit Voice of Witness, which advances human rights by amplifying the voices of people impacted by and fighting against injustice, joins the virtual library to present their latest book, Mi María: Surviving the Storm, an account of Puerto Rico's devastating Hurricane María told from first-person narrators.

On Sept. 20, 2017, Hurricane María pummeled Puerto Rico for more than thirty hours. As brutal as the storm was, the real catastrophe was yet to come. Lack of government support left many in the archipelago without electricity, clean drinking water, food and medical care for months. Years later, Puerto Rico is still recovering.

Mi María: Surviving the Storm brings together 17 stories of perseverance and community that ask what it means to be a US citizen in a colonial context, how communities come together in the wake of disaster and how precarity is exacerbated for those on the frontlines of the climate crisis.

Panel: Voice of Witness, Mi María: Surviving the Storm – Feb. 18, 12 p.m.

More Than a Month: Black History, Culture & Heritage

Black Invention Celebrated in Collectible Bookmark, Exhibit

Did you know that the automatic doors of the elevator were invented by a Black inventor? Alexander Miles patented his design for automatic elevator doors in 1887. Be sure to pick up a Black Inventors bookmark, created by Rev. Dr. Carolyn Ransom-Scott, to celebrate the Black innovators who had a part in designing and improving many of the things we use today, from light bulbs, to elevators, to air conditioners and tricycle. A highlight of our More Than a Month celebration, the bookmark is available in all branches of the library this month.

The contribution of Black innovation to American culture and environment are all around us. The Library's new Black Excellence, Black

Invention exhibit honors the thousands of Black inventors and creators who helped shape our world by documenting Black innovation, including inventions attributed to the enslaved during antebellum period, the first patent issued to Thomas L. Jennings for a method of dry-cleaning in 1821, and many others throughout the past decades. Come see photos and texts from archival and library resources showing a broad view of Black invention that includes objects of Black cultural expression, such as the hair products of Madame C. J. Walker, as well as Black cultural and artistic expression in areas outside of a profit-motivated model.

More Than A Wall For photographer David Bacon, the border region between the United States and Mexico is a land marked by life and death. Each year, at least 300-400 people die trying to cross into the U.S. in search of a better future for themselves and their families. The border is also bustling with life. The once-small towns of Ciudad Juárez and Tijuana are now home to millions of people, many of whom make up the industrial workforce of Southern California, South Texas and New Mexico. Taken over a period of 30 years, Bacon's photographs and accompanying text panels, which are presented in English and Spanish, the Library's exhibition More Than a Wall explores all aspects of the border region and its vibrant social history. The mission of Friends of the San Francisco Public Library is to create, steward and support a superior, free public library system in San Francisco. We are committed to raising the standard of excellence of our libraries by funding programs and services beyond what is allocated in the city's budget. We believe in free and equal access to information for all.

FreeWill

Just as a library is a powerhouse of knowledge, we have the power to grow, learn, develop every single day—and we encourage you to always be inquisitive and learn from the people and world around you.

The New Year prompts us to set good intentions and resolutions to become the best versions of ourselves. Kick off 2022 on the right foot by creating a free estate plan using FreeWill! You might be thinking, "Why an estate plan?" Estate plans hold an array of benefits, for not only you but also your family, and even the causes you love (like Friends!).

An estate plan can:

- Ensure your family, friends and pets can always count on you
- Exercise agency over the important decisions in your life, including identifying beneficiaries for your assets
- Support San Francisco Public Library throughout 2022 and beyond through an optional legacy gift

We hope this resource can help you start this new year off strong. Join the number of Friends who have already used this resource to create their wills and ensure their futures.

Thank you for your loyal, continued support and Happy New Year!
